Examine & Acknowledge your results

1. Examine/Review your self-assessment

What column: Healthy (Green), Reacting (Yellow), Injured (Orange), or III (Red), did you notice most of your signs and indicators?

2. Reflect on your results

- a. Healthy (Green): Am I doing ok?
- b. Reacting (Yellow): What has changed?
- c. Injured (Orange): How long have I been feeling this way?
- d. III (Red): I need to access help. Access the How to Get Help webpage.

3. Acknowledge and practice self-compassion

- a. Acknowledge that what you are going through and the feelings you are experiencing are valid.
- b. Use mindfulness to recognize negative thoughts and emotions, observing them in a non-judgmental way.
- c. Be kind to yourself by using positive self-talk as opposed to being self-critical.

4. Determine next steps

- a. Healthy (Green):
  - i. Embed health practices into your daily routines. Talk the Wellness Wheel Self-Assessment and then develop your own self-care action plan. Engage in education and skill building activities. Visit the Engaging our People: Education and Health Practices webpage to learn more.
- b. Reacting (Yellow):
  - i. Focus on the basics: good sleep, eating well, and being physically active.
  - ii. Seek support from others: friends, family members, colleagues.
- c. Injured (Orange):
  - i. Seek professional support, such as accessing the Employee Assistance Program. Free, confidential support is available 24/7: 1.844.671.3327
- d. III (Red):
  - i. Access help now via the Connect to Help section below.

Tip: At any point along the mental health continuum, you can benefit from accessing well-being resources.
