How to View your Pension Contributions

Understanding your Pension Contributions

1	Pension Contribution Breakdown Additional Voluntary Pension Contributio Your Additional Voluntary Contribution:	n 0.0000%	1	The Additional Voluntary Pension Contribution is the percentage of your pensionable earnings that you have chosen to contribute to your pension in addition to your required pension contribution.
2	Your Total Additional Voluntary Contribution: Pension Plan Contribution	0.0000%	2	 2 The Employee Contribution (EE) reflects the percentage of your pensionable earnings that you are required to contribute. The Employer Contribution (ER) reflects the percentage of your pensionable earnings that the university contributes as a basic contribution. The University Supplemental Pension Contribution (USPC) is the portion of the university supplemental contribution percentage (in 0.5%)
	Pension Plan: Your Required Employee Contribution (EE):	3.5% EE & 7.5% ER + 2.0% USPC 3.5000%
	Total Employer (ER) and University Supplemental Pension Contributions (USPC):	9.5000%
3	Ouniversity Supplemental Health Spending Your University Supplemental Health Spending Contribution:	g Contribution 0.0000 %		increments, up to 2%) that you have opted to allocate to your pension, in addition to the basic ER amount. Any portion of the 2% not directed to your pension will be allocated to your Health Spending Account (HSA), for HSA eligible employees, or to pension for those employees
	Your Total University Supplemental Health Spending Contribution:	0.0000%	(3	The University Supplemental Health Spending Contribution is the
	Note : This screenshot is for illustrative purposes only. The contribution amounts shown are examples and will differ based on each individual employee's contribution rates and selections			portion of the university supplemental contribution percentage (in 0.5% increments, up to 2%) that you have opted to allocate to your HSA, in addition to your basic HSA allotment. Any portion of the 2% not allocated to the HSA will be directed to your pension plan. This option is available only to HSA eligible employees.