

Minor Program Adjustment

Faculty: Social Science and Humanities	Date: November 11, 2017
Program: Legal Studies
Undergraduate: <input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	Graduate: <input type="checkbox"/>

Minor Program Adjustments include: New required courses, Deletion of required courses, Other changes to degree requirements or program learning outcomes, New academic requirements or changes to existing requirements.

Motion: That CPRC approve the changes to the Legal Studies program as presented.

Proposal Brief

Summary of the proposed change (for pathways, please include details on the specific or unspecified transfer credits students will receive, if applicable)

1. Delete three courses: SSCI 2900 Research Methods from the list of required 2nd year courses for the Legal Studies students; COMM 3610U Persuasion from the list of required 3rd year courses for the Legal Studies students; and, SSCI 4020 Leadership and Administration from the list of required 4th year courses for the Legal Studies students.
2. Change the required electives in Years 2, 3, and 4
3. Add three new Legal Studies courses: LGLS 4100 Law, Justice and Education, LGLS 3700 Law & Power, and LGLS 3800 Issues in Health Law & Biomedical Ethics.
4. Change to prerequisites for LGLS 4040U Law and the Environment
5. Change definition of an approved Legal Studies elective to delete Rights and Freedoms and add CRMN 3053 Prosecution and Sentencing.

Description of the ways in which the proposed change will enhance the program and/or opportunities for students

1. The deletion of the courses will allow students to take one more LGLS or other elective, which may be more closely related to their area of study. Unfortunately, practice has shown that the three above mentioned courses have not been as useful to the Legal Studies students as anticipated. Allowing them to take an elective instead would be more beneficial for their studies.
2. We are deleting the three required electives because they are not Legal Studies courses and we have concluded that students should have the ability to select electives that most closely align with their interests. We have reached this decision in light of student feedback and review of the syllabi for these courses. Although each course offers a valuable and enriching element for Legal Studies student, we do not see them as requisite components of a Legal Studies degree.
3. Introduction of three courses:
  - a) The introduction of LGLS 4100 Law, Justice and Education renders permanent a course being offered for the first time as an Advanced Topics course; Law Justice and Education

- complements the Foundations in Legal Studies course (to be offered for the first time in winter 2018).
- b) LGLS 3700 Law & Power is consistent with critical scholarly approaches to Legal Studies and permits students to engage in what are at once perennial and timely questions connecting law and power.
  - c) LGLS 3800 Issues in Health Law & Biomedical Ethics provides students in Health Sciences and Legal Studies and opportunity for more advanced, specialized study of health law.
4. Improves access to the course (LGLS 4040U Law and the Environment) for both Legal Studies students and other FSSH students.
  5. To replace a course from the list of requirements that has never been taught by a Legal Studies faculty member with one that regularly is; this ensures greater consistency of courses with Legal Studies program learning outcomes.

Process of consultation with other units if the change(s) involves students, staff, and/or faculty from other programs or courses

1. The decision to remove the three courses was made following feedback received from students during the external reviewers' visit (provided during a meeting between students and reviewers), review of syllabi for the three courses as well as discussion by the Legal Studies faculty.
2. Consultation within the program.
3. (c) In developing the proposal for LGLS 3800 Issues in Health Law & Biomedical Ethics, Legal Studies consulted with Health Sciences.
- 3a, 3b, 4, 5. Consultation within the program.

Analysis of financial and enrolment implications

There are no anticipated financial or enrolment implications.

Proposed Implementation Date (state term, e.g. Fall 2017)

Fall 2018

Transition Plan (include a plan for all current students in the program, by year level)

It is expected that the changes will impact only new students. However, if any students have not completed required courses that are now being changed, substitutions will be made.

Legal Studies

CALENDAR DESCRIPTION

This course examines the principles, philosophies, and debates in the biomedical field that are foundational to health law, with a focus on how law organizes health care access and resource allocation, and how health law responds to contentious bioethical issues. The course presents and critically reflects on law's role in upholding patient rights, and corresponding responsibilities of medical professionals and the state, in relation to contemporary issues which may include consent to treatment and decisional capacity, management of medical information and patient rights to privacy and disclosure, reproductive justice, end of life decision making, and organ and tissue donation.

Legal Studies

CALENDAR DESCRIPTION

The course provides students with an overview of institutional forms and ideological rationales for legal education in a variety of social contexts. From professional training for lawyers to public legal education initiatives, the course examines a range of theories and practices of legal education. The course offers students historical background and the opportunity to engage a range of critical perspectives on the relationships that law, justice, and education bear to one another. Students have the opportunity to demonstrate their powers of critical self-reflection, while designing, executing, and assessing workshops for students in first year Foundations of Legal Studies.

CONSULTATION AND FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS, WHERE APPROPRIATE

“Law, Justice and Education” will serve as a capstone to the four-year Legal Studies program. Although the course will involve a range of potential assessment methods, it focuses on “learning-by-teaching”: preparing and assessing students as they lead workshops with first-year students in Foundations of Legal Studies. The course (in the form of an Advanced Topics in Legal Studies) will be offered in the Winter 2018 term.

DESCRIPTION AND/OR REASON FOR CHANGE AND WAYS IN WHICH IT MAINTAINS/ENHANCES COURSE/PROGRAM OBJECTIVES

The current pre-reqs for Law and Environment make it inaccessible to some Legal Studies students as well as students from other programs. This course is also now included in the sustainability studies minor and, ideally, should be relatively open to students from other programs and faculties.
